

Students urged to attend

Open meeting today on new constitution

by Miriam Glitscheln

An open meeting has been called for 1 p.m. today in the Union ballroom to discuss a proposed new constitution for the Students' Society.

The constitution, submitted by Linda Feldman and Michael Johnson on behalf of the Committee for a New Constitution, first appeared in the Daily on Sept. 26.

According to Feldman, the new constitution aims to give students a greater role in decision-making. "Voting turnouts in past years have generally been poor," she said. "It is obvious students do not believe Council can adequately represent their interests."

"The solution is to give students a greater opportunity to formulate policy and make decisions," she said. Their involvement will revitalize the Students' Society." Feldman said the new constitution encourages more student involvement by allowing both open meetings and referenda to overrule Council. In that way, she said, unrepresentative councils are held in check, and final decisions rest with the whole student population.

An open meeting originally petitioned by Johnson and Feldman for Oct. 11 to discuss the constitution was postponed by Paul Drager, president of the Students' Society. A Judicial Committee ruling last week stated the petitioner had the right to specify the time of an open meeting, when reasonable.

Drager subsequently called the open meeting for today. Drager himself has overseen the drafting of another constitution which has not yet been formally proposed.

Student calmly amuses herself as she gives blood. Other students found the idea of giving blood too traumatic as they stayed away in droves. The Blood Drive missed its goal by nearly 2,000 pints.

Highlights of the new constitution

- impeachment of councillors and members of executive made possible
- all faculties given a flexible system of representation by population
- ISA and residences each gain one non-voting member on council
- open meetings and referenda take explicit precedence over Council decisions
- anyone may run as a Council member, not just students in their penultimate year
- vice-president of university affairs created to take care of educational affairs of the Students' Society
- enlarged Council restructured with introduction of a speaker and deputy speaker
- constitution written in more explicit terms avoiding the vagueness of the current 10-year-old constitution.

Blood Drive falls short

by John Van Toch

The McGill Blood Drive drew to a close last night with the same poor turnout that plagued it all week long. The last minute rush that hopeful organizers had expected from the procrastinators on campus never materialized.

We were expecting about 800 pints today," said Ruth Delmar, public relations manager for the drive. By the end of the day only 530 donors had obliged. This puts the total for the drive at 2,550 pints; 1,950 below the objective and 1,450 pints below the absolute minimum that the Red Cross must collect each week to replenish its blood bank.

Approximately 50 per cent of the total will be used in Quebec, while 40 per cent will be shipped to Israel and 10 per cent to the Arab states.

"The Blood Drive will never be regarded as one of the large events on campus again," lamented Delmar. The general mood of the organizers was one of disgust at the apathy of the students as potential donors. They were also disappointed in the volunteers for not living up to their commitments and in the McGill Student Entrepreneurial Agency for not coming through with an aggressive ad campaign.

As an example of students' 'creative apathy', refreshments coordinator Marc Roseman cited the response of students in residence to the drive's door-to-door appeal. Of the 800 students, only 35 gave blood, while the rest claimed to have 'malaria', or to be 'transvestites in the midst of their periods', or, presumably, that their grandmothers had just died.

The efforts of the seven organizers to provide prizes, refreshments, and entertainment to lure students into the Ballroom were apparently in vain.

"If we gave a prize to each donor, maybe then people would show up," suggested Delmar. She and Roseman agreed that the students need very large inducements to overcome their apathy and fear of the needle. "Entertainment shouldn't be needed and we shouldn't have to ask them to come," she said, adding that the satisfaction of giving the "gift of life" should be motivation enough.

Decreasing amounts collected each year means that the Red Cross will no longer be able to rely solely on McGill for its quota during the week of the drive. As a result, it will be inclined to send fewer beds and nurses to McGill in the future, while supplementing the McGill drive with others around the city.

By-election results

by Martin Braun

Results of the Students' Society by-elections, held yesterday afternoon, show Richard Markus, David Miller, and Bob Bennett as winners in the faculties of Arts and Sciences, Engineering, and Education, respectively.

Final results of the Graduate Studies race between Andrew E. Fenus and Ian Hyman will be known tonight; the poll in Thomson House is open this evening from 4 p.m. to 8 p.m.

The by-election was called as a result of five resignations: Robert Blohm (Arts and Sciences), Mark Bernier (Engineering), Erna Brigden (Education), Lloyd Loomis (Religious Studies), and Richard Lande (Law). The latter two posts have already been filled by acclamation, Henry Coopersmith in Religious Studies and Roderick Charters in Law. Winners of the by-election will complete the term that ends in December of this year.

The voting breakdown went as follows: Arts and Sciences — Markus (189), Michael Johnson (176), Gary Burgess (63), Anna Campagna (61); Engineering — Miller (63), David Stein (43), Jim Richards (31); Education — Bennett (54), Casian Moscovici (37), Irit Schaffer (33), John Lou (15), Gayle Sinclair (11).

Voting booths were set up in nine different locations around campus, not including Thomson House. Nevertheless, turnouts were meagre once again — 8% of Arts and Science students voted, 12% of the Engineers, and 17% in Education.

Sure we'd like to help, but...

Forget it. You either help or you don't. Today some people are going to help. They will be going around the campus asking for your 25 cents; it's not much, but it will help buy better books, better teachers, better schools. A better education for kids in Africa, India, South America and Turkey. 25c will open a kid's mind. And hell, what's two bits anyway.

Bell backtracks in letter

Academic and non-academic staff members who respected picket lines during the buildings and grounds workers' strike will be expected to make up for lost time.

This McGill policy was stated by Principal Bell in a letter to deans, department heads, and other administrators.

Bell's letter, written last Friday and obtained by the Daily yesterday, says no one will suffer any loss of salary for being absent, but adds that "specific arrangements" should be worked out to catch up on time lost. The letter also expressed appreciation to staff members who crossed picket lines.

Bell was not available for comment. His office said no formal complaints over the policy have been filed.

At a meeting of McGill staff on the second day of the strike, Bell promised that no academic staff members would be penalized for their actions during the strike.

Immanuel Wallerstein, president of the McGill Faculty Union — which supported the maintenance workers' strike and has been collecting grievances from people who feel they were penalized for their actions during this strike — said he would not comment on Bell's letter until he consults with the MFU.

The draft response to Cahiers II and III on the "Objectives and Orientations of Higher Education in Quebec", was presented to Senate yesterday by Dr. D.C. Thomson, Chairman of the Planning Commission.

The response attempts to clarify McGill's position regarding the proposals made by the government in the two cahiers. Unfortunately, senators were unable to take a step towards adopting or ratifying the response before quorum was broken. At this point, the discussion was reduced to successive straw votes on four points raised by Dean Vogel.

"First, the introduction to McGill's response should state clearly that McGill would like to be a part of a network of universities in Quebec, but would not like to be part of one university with a network of programs," said Vogel. "Second, the cahiers must be consistent in their arguments regarding whether they envisage one system or two systems (anglophone/francophone) of higher education, in Quebec." Both these motions met with approval from the senators who were still on hand. The discussion will be continued at the next meeting, but, as was pointed out, if McGill fails to respond to the cahiers quickly, there is the chance that the government will assume McGill agrees with the suggestions it contains.

Senate meets, lacks quorum

Senate also dealt with a report by the library committee on the status of librarians and library workers, and library working conditions. The most significant aspect of the report, according to Glenn Higginbotham, who is recording secretary for Senate, is the recognition of the university's librarians as belonging to the university's academic community.

The libraries' staffs have adopted a "tenure and professorial style of rank", with a policy of granting a senior professorial appointment to librarians who have eight years of experience, with a least three of these being at McGill. A person so appointed is guaranteed that dismissal will be for cause only. This change in the policy will hopefully have the effect of attracting highly qualified librarians to McGill.

In other business, several new awards, prizes, and bursaries were adopted. The agenda for the next Senate meeting, scheduled for Nov. 7, 8th floor Leacock, includes a discussion of McGill's response to teacher classification. Student Senator Stephen Fogarty will also present a motion which states that "in the event of a strike at McGill... (no person) would be compelled by threat of penalty into performing their university function until the termination of said strike."

MCGILL UNIVERSITY

INTER-DEPARTMENTAL MEMORANDUM

DATE: Oct. 19, 1973

TO: Deans
Chairmen of Departments
Directors of Schools & Institutes
Administrative Department Heads

FROM: The Principal
SUBJECT: Strike

During the recent strike, most University employees stayed at their posts and continued working. Some members of the University, for a variety of reasons, did not continue in their duties.

It is the University's policy that no retributive action should be taken, and that so far as possible, members of the staff who are in very different situations should be treated equitably. In general, it can be said that staff members who were not members of the striking Union will not suffer any loss of salary for absences occurring during the strike, but they should expect to make up for time lost, both in teaching and in other duties. Specific arrangements can only be worked out at the local levels.

The University expresses appreciation to those members of the staff who continued in their positions and enabled the academic and operational program of the University to continue. Their efforts helped in reaching a solution to the strike, and therefore benefited us all.

Candidate Leger speaks

by Darryl Benjamin

"The problems of Quebec can only be solved through socialist methods," said Manon Leger yesterday in a talk at the Union.

The 26 year-old Trotskyist of the Ligue Socialiste Ouvriere declared herself against Robert Bourassa and the Parti Quebecois. She described Quebec as suffering under "capitalist exploitation that is at the root of national oppression". She said the only way for Quebec to free itself from capitalism, is to create a social system controlled by those who create the goods of the nation; the working class.

Leger emphasized that she was against the foreign monopolies and corporations in Quebec, and not the English-speaking people. She advocates full political and social emancipation for women, free 24 hour day-care centres, students exercising more control over universities, and free books and university education. All of these changes are to be financed by 'taxing the big corporations'.

In 1970, she was arrested for protesting Canadian involvement in Vietnam. During the same year she won 7,000 votes in her riding.

Accusing the Parti Quebecois of being a 'bourgeois party' she said they opposed almost every action in favor of Labour rights, did not support demonstration in defence of the French language, and accepted backing from big corporations.

Leger went out of her way to state that she was 'against Bourassa' from his support of the James Bay Project to his federalist invasion in 1970 to crush to nationalist movement in Quebec.

According to Manon Leger, a government should be in full harmony with its people; and the only way to accomplish that now is by campaigning to 'raise the consciousness of the people'.

CANCELLATION OF LECTURES FOR PROVINCIAL ELECTION

To allow staff and students to vote in the provincial elections and to comply with Quebec law, the Steering Committee of Senate has cancelled all lectures and laboratory periods in the regular teaching program from 3 p.m. on Monday, October 29, 1973.

The Secretary-Treasurer shall give the members individual notice at least forty-eight (48) hours before each meeting. Two-thirds of those students who are voting members of the Students' Council shall constitute a quorum. A meeting shall be called by the Secretary-Treasurer upon receipt of a written request signed by a majority of the voting members of the Students' Council. The Students' Council may delegate its authority to a Summer Committee of the Students' Council to take interim decisions, subject to later ratification by the full Students' Council.

4) All meetings of the Students' Council and its committees shall be open to observers, unless the members present at such meeting decide to hold the meeting or a part thereof in camera by a two-thirds majority vote. In such a case, the particular reason for that decision shall be announced. All agenda and notices of the time and place of meetings shall be made public in advance. The minutes of meetings of the Students' Council shall be posted in their entirety on School and Faculty notice boards, except for sections of minutes recording discussions held in camera.

5) Committees chosen by the Students' Council may from time to time be appointed to consider or execute such business as it is the duty of the Students' Council to perform. Any such committee shall be responsible to the Students' Council through the President or one of the Vice-Presidents, as determined by the Students' Council.

6) The Students' Council shall be responsible for the management and control of the McGill Daily through the Editor-in-Chief. 7) In accordance with the University Statutes, the Students' Council shall be responsible for the election or appointment of Students' Society representatives to the University Senate and Board of Governors and such committees as they may from time to time establish. The members of the Judicial Board shall be chosen on the basis of their academic standing and knowledge of student affairs from among the members of the Students' Society who shall have completed two years of a university program in Law or Jurisprudence on the date that they assume office; but no elected officer of the Students' Society or its Regular Committees shall be eligible for appointment to the Judicial Board. 6) The Judicial Board shall be the final authority on the interpretation of the Constitution and regulations of the Students' Society, and its decisions on these matters shall be binding upon the parties or organizations concerned except that if disciplinary sanctions are imposed, the parties or organizations concerned shall have the right of appeal to the University Senate.

Article X — Finances

No such committee shall receive funds unless its budget has been approved by the Students' Council.

2) The Vice-Presidents shall be elected annually between the twenty-second day of February and the seventh day of March by a ballot of all members of the Students' Society. Candidates for these positions shall be nominated by any fifty (50) members of the Students' Society. Such nominations shall be presented in writing to the Secretary-Treasurer at least ten (10) days before the date of the election and published in the McGill Daily at least seven (7) days before the date of the election.

3) The Speaker and the Deputy Speaker shall be appointed annually between the seventh day of March and the thirtieth day of March by the Students' Council upon the recommendation of the Judicial Board.

4) The Finance Director shall be appointed annually between the fifteenth day of January and the thirty-first day of January by the President in accordance with application procedures established by the Students' Council and subject to confirmation by the Students' Council.

c) The Finance Director shall take office on the first day of February and shall have a tenure of twelve (12) months. In the event of a resignation or vacancy, a successor shall be selected within twenty-one (21) days, the procedure of election being similar to that used in the case of regular selection. Until such time as a successor may be chosen, the President shall appoint a member of the Students' Council to serve as Acting Finance Director.

6) The election of Officers of the Students' Society shall be conducted in accordance with the Electoral By-Laws of the Students' Society. A Chief Returning Officer shall be appointed by the Students' Council and his decisions concerning interpretation of the Electoral By-Laws shall be final, except that they shall be subject to appeal to the Judicial Board.

7) No publication by a Regular Committee of the Students' Society or published with the funds of a Regular Committee shall express or imply any but a neutral attitude in discussing any election of student representatives.

8) The Secretary-Treasurer and the Comptroller shall be salaried employees of the Students' Society. They shall not be members of the Students' Society. The continuation of their employment shall be subject to review by the Students' Council. In the event of termination of their employment, at least four (4) weeks' notice in writing shall be given.

Article XII — Election of Representatives to the Students' Council

1) Representatives to the Students' Council from the constituencies described under Articles V(1) and VII (2)(e) above shall be elected annually between the twentieth day of November and the tenth day of December by the members of the respective constituencies, except that Representatives from the constituency defined under Article V (1)(1) above shall be elected annually between the twenty-second day of February and the seventh day of March.

2) Subject to Article III(2) above, any student in the constituency shall be eligible for election to the Students' Council. Nomination papers must be signed by twenty-five (25) members of the constituency or twenty-five percent (25%) of the membership of the constituency, whichever is less. Such papers must be in the hands of the Secretary-Treasurer of the Students' Society at least ten (10) days before the date of the election and shall be published in the McGill Daily at least seven (7) days before the date of the election.

3) Voting shall be by a ballot of all the members of the respective constituency. In accordance with Article VII (2)(e) above, a student may vote to elect one Representative for each Electoral Unit or part thereof allocated to the constituency.

4) Such elections shall be conducted by the Chief Returning Officer of the Students' Society in accordance with the Electoral By-Laws of the Students' Society.

5) All Representatives to the Students' Council from the constituencies defined under Articles V(1) and VII (2)(e) above shall be elected on the first day of January and shall have a tenure of twelve months, except that the Representatives from the constituency defined under Article V (1)(1) above shall take office on the first day of June and shall have a tenure of twelve months. In the event of a resignation or vacancy, the Students' Council shall decide on a date for the election of a successor within twenty-one (21) days, the procedure of election being similar to that in the case of a regular election, and the successor so elected shall hold office for the remainder of that term.

6) The Representative described under Article VII (2)(i) above shall be elected in a similar manner to that described under paragraphs (2) to (5) above, except that he shall be elected annually between the first day of October and the twenty-first day of October. He shall take office on the date of the first meeting of the Students' Council following his election and he shall hold this position until such time as the election of a Representative from this constituency may be held the succeeding year. In the event of a resignation or vacancy, a successor shall be elected in a similar manner to that described above.

The establishment, amendment, or annulment of By-Laws of the Students' Society shall require previous notice and a two-thirds affirmative vote.

The Articles of Impeachment shall be recorded in the McGill Daily by the President. The Speaker shall act as Chairman of such an Extraordinary Open Meeting, unless the Impeachment Proceedings are brought against him, in which case the Deputy Speaker shall act as Chairman. Six hundred (600) members of the Students' Society shall constitute a quorum. An affirmative vote of two-thirds shall be required for removal from office.

2) Representatives to the Students' Council from the constituencies described under Articles V (1) and VII (2)(e) and VII (2)(i) above may be impeached by their constituents in accordance with the following procedure: An Extraordinary Open Meeting of the members of such a constituency for the purpose of bringing Impeachment Proceedings against a Representative of that constituency shall be called by the President of the Students' Society upon receipt of Articles of Impeachment signed by either five hundred (500) or one-third of the members of that constituency, whichever is less, on seven (7) days notice. The Articles of Impeachment shall be recorded in the McGill Daily by the President. The Speaker shall act as Chairman of such an Extraordinary Open Meeting. notice shall be interpreted to exclude Saturdays, Sundays, and holidays recognized by the University.

3) A Special Open Meeting shall be called by the President at the written request of three hundred (300) members of the Students' Society on three days' notice given in the McGill Daily. Initial motions to be presented at a Special Open Meeting shall be recorded by the President in the McGill Daily at the same time as such notice of the Special Open Meeting is published.

4) At each of the above meetings, three hundred (300) members shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business. An Unofficial Open Meeting is one for which there is no quorum present.

5) An Official Open Meeting of the Students' Society shall have the power to put any question to a referendum and to determine the wording of the ballot and the date or dates the referendum shall be conducted. The Chief Returning Officer of the Students' Society shall hold the referendum accordingly.

2) The Students' Council may hold a referendum on any or all of the questions that were discussed at an Official or Unofficial Open Meeting of the Students' Society.

4) Referenda shall be conducted by the Chief Returning Officer of the Students' Society.

Article XVII — Amendment

1) This Constitution may be amended only by an affirmative vote of two-thirds of a referendum of the Students' Society. For purposes of this clause, invalid ballots shall not be taken into account.

James Bay: development of dependence

by Michel Celemenski

Premier Bourassa's James Bay Project is a variation on an old theme. Hydro-electric development has been a symbol of progress in Quebec ever since the Lesage Liberal government set up Hydro-Quebec during the "Quiet Revolution." Hydro-Quebec, according to the orators of the time, "would assure the future for the youth of the province," namely the infant technocratic elite.

Quebec's biggest dam — the Daniel Johnson Dam in Manicouagan — has been Quebec what the Aswan Dam is to Egypt or the Hoover is to the U.S. But Bourassa is lauding the James Bay Development Project in even grander terms — as the Tennessee Valley Authority (TVA) of Quebec.

"Somewhat in the image of the great Tennessee Valley Authority in the United States, the James Bay development will be the cornerstone of Quebec's new economy and its place in the Canadian Confederation and in North America," said Bourassa.

It was in this sort of spirit that Premier Bourassa introduced Bill 50, which officially formed the James Bay Development Corporation, on Bastille Day (one of his favorite days), July 14, 1971.

By February 1972, Bourassa announced that the project would cost between $6 billion and $10 billion and in May 1972 the location of the first phase of the project was shifted to the northern part of James Bay, which has the greatest energy potential in the James Bay area.

Earlier plans for the project, announced by Robert Boyd, a commissioner for Hydro-Quebec (and now president of the James Bay Development Corporation), on October 27, 1970, called for harnessing rivers in the south of the James Bay area at a cost of only $2.5 to $3 billion. Boyd had said that the market for this new energy would be the north-east United States.

In his recent book on James Bay, for which he faces possible charges of contempt of court, Bourassa said the project is meant for the energy needs of Quebec.

Quebec has certainly come a long way. In 1970, the government was going to build a $3 billion project to sell energy to the American market, and today it is building a $6 to $10 billion project to meet the energy needs of Quebec alone.

Uranium enrichment plant

The most plausible explanation put forward so far for this change was published by McGill economist Kari Levitt and Jean-Pierre Fournier in the April 10, 1973 edition of Le Devoir.

The argue that the vast surplus of energy that the project will generate is to be used in a uranium enrichment plant to be built by the Brinco consortium. The house of Rothschild, affiliated to Brinco through Rio Tinto Zinc, will provide a large proportion of the funds at current interest rates to build the dams. The Rothschilds have vast holdings of uranium in Namibia (now known as South West Africa under the illegal trusteeship of the Republic of South Africa), but Namibia's political instability made the Rothschilds look elsewhere to invest the vast sums needed for a uranium enrichment.

To explain this apparently fantastic hypothesis, a bit of backtracking must be done. The patient reader, it is hoped, will not be disappointed.

When Quebec first went looking for foreign financing for James Bay, in 1970, its position was not exactly ideal. It had just emerged from a serious political crisis; unemployment was at a chronically high level; and the credit position of the government was rather weak since the Union Nationale had built up a large international debt. Hydro-Quebec itself had a large debt, with about half of its annual revenues going towards servicing it. It was obvious that if Quebec expected financing for its vast project, certain concessions would have to be made.

Coom Coomishish and his wife: "We think of our grandchildren, that they should be able to hunt as well. We hope they will not drown the earth."

At first it was thought that the American financiers would back the project if export guarantees were made.

In fact Bourassa was in New York giving his James Bay presentation when the October crisis erupted. Six months later, in April 1971, Bourassa and Roland Giroux (later of the James Bay Development Corporation) went to London, where they had a conversation with James Cross, the British commercial attaché who had been kidnapped by the FLQ. They then had conversations with British financiers and lunch with Baron Edmund Rothschild, director of Brinco. In July 1971, about a week before Bill 50 was passed, Sir Val Duncan, president of the administrative council of Rio Tinto Zinc, to which Brinco is affiliated, declared in a visit to Montreal that he had "a particular interest" in Quebec.

This series of events is not intended to uncover a sinister plot brought on by evil men, but rather is an illustration of how a government like Quebec cannot expect to control the terms of its own development if it depends on huge multinational interests.

Partial truth

In his recent book, Bourassa has told only part of the truth to avoid admitting that the project has strings attached, which will lock Quebec's resources to outside interests for a long time to come.

He claims, for example, that Quebec will need a capacity of 32 million kilowatts of power in 1985. These figures are based on Hydro-Quebec's annual growth of 7.9 per cent, experienced between 1951 and 1971, which he assumes will continue at the same rate until 1985.

Now, Bourassa is too competent an economist to mechanically extend the figures of the previous two decades to the next two decades. He certainly realizes that the last two decades for Quebec were exceptional. The same rate of rural electrification and installation of domestic and commercial appliances will not be repeated in the next two decades because the base was being laid during the previous period.

Also, the rate of population growth in Quebec is declining, and decreased fuel consumption due to improvements in equipment and to increased concentration of people in apartments which use less fuel per unit than single dwelling houses, will mean a lower rate of energy use. Finally, the growth rate of Hydro-Quebec was greater than the growth rate of the province's demands since Hydro increased its share of the Quebec market substantially since 1951.

Khazzoom

Dr. J. Daniel Khazzoom of McGill's economics department has determined in a complex econometric model, which was used as testimony in the James Bay hearings, that, even using the most generous assumptions—price of electricity frozen at 1970 levels while prices of substitute fuels rise at a rate of between five and 10 per cent, a rate of population and income growth higher than that experienced in 1970 or 1971, full employment fiscal policies, strong export demands, etc.—a growth rate of only 4 to 4.5

per cent is likely rather than Bourassa's 7.9 per cent.

Using the factors most favourable to the growth of electrical consumption and using Hydro's method of calculating capacity which is in itself questionable, "we arrive at a total capacity which is 2,750 megawatts [2,750,000 kilowatts] smaller than what Hydro forecasted for 1980," according to Dr. Khazzoom.

Therefore to justify capacity as large as that of James Bay, some new factor must enter the Quebec economy. The only conceivable one, which requires about 2.5 million kilowatts capacity is a uranium enrichment plant.

Bourassa has denied that plans for a uranium enrichment plant exist, but he says in his book that "the discovery of economically viable uranium deposits in an area of low-cost electricity—producing centers and of large quantities of water would make it possible, should scientific studies prove positive, to envisage a uranium-enriching plant, a further investment which would significantly influence the Quebec economy."

Donald MacDonald, the Canadian minister of energy, mines, and resources, has confirmed the existence of plans for a uranium plant, probably located near Montreal rather than near Sept-Isles as originally conceived, to allow the plant to draw on all the hydro-electric resources of Quebec. The location of the plant would allow easier shipping of uranium from foreign countries, supporting Levitt's theory that the uranium will come from Namibia, not from the James Bay area, as Bourassa suggested.

The question is whether such an enrichment project is in the interest of Quebec and Canada. Although almost all industrial countries depend on enriched uranium for electrical production, Canada has a unique method, CANDU, which uses only raw uranium and heavy water.

If Canada wants to get a high price for its valuable electrical resources (in the U.S., for instance), it is ridiculous to produce a low-cost substitute-enriched uranium. As far as other countries are concerned, such as Japan or the European Economic Community, this enriched uranium cannot be used as a bargaining lever for the trade concessions, since its production is under the control of private industry.

Canada will not be able to use its laws on strategic military sales since the uranium produced will be too impure to be used for war. Uranium for commercial use is enriched by 5 per cent, whereas for military uses it is almost 100 per cent.

Further, Quebec should conserve its cheap electrical resources to create more jobs. A uranium enrichment plant is almost fully automated and provides little in the way of related industries. In fact, even short-term jobs would not be created since most of the sophisticated technical equipment for the plant would be manufactured outside of Quebec.

In fact, one of the companies now producing such technology (in France) is Bechtel, which has the main management contract for the James Bay Development Project and also had the management contract at Churchill Falls.

As Bob Davis and Mark Zannis have written in a book called James Bay Forum, "Its (Bechtel's) phenomenal rise began with an arrangement with Kaiser Corporation to build liberty ships during the Second World War. For this the Bechtel-McCone corporation was formed, involving John A. McCone, who later went on to head the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission, the Central Intelligence Agency, and then to a directorship of ITT as well as to the U.S. government's Public Committees on Personnel which had authority over the diplomatic corps."

Tidbits

Davis and Zannis bring out a lot of interesting tidbits on the company; for instance, Bechtel built 90 per cent of Canada's pipelines since World War Two, has been kicked out of India and Saudi Arabia, and has been convicted of bribery of public officials in New Jersey.

Among the more interesting is that Stephen Bechtel Jr. sits on the board of Hannah Mining Company. Hannah Mining is connected to the Humphrey-Hannah groups, which has strong links to Rio Tinto

Phillip Awashish

Zinc, the group that will build the uranium plant.

We can see from this complicated web of interests that the financing, management, and direction of James Bay has long been decided by interests that have little concern for the well-being of Quebec. Premier Bourassa has sold the north of Quebec, its resources, and its people to huge international financial and industrial interests. The effects on the whole of Quebec are not difficult to estimate—our position as a dependent area is assured for the future.
